The LENYO Harmony is a unique Bioregulation Therapy (BRT) device that uses advanced pulsed electromagnetic field (PEMF) technology to support biological communications at the cellular level. Cellular communication is critical to supporting the body's natural self-regulation and adaptation activities, which in turn help to strengthen the immune system, balance the body and maintain overall wellness.

Both environmental and biological stressors can contribute to the breakdown of the body's inner communication processes – including allergies and chemical sensitivities, nutritional deficiencies, toxins and metabolic waste, trauma and stress, overstimulation, and electrosmog. When inner communications are compromised and natural regulation and adaptation is disrupted, a number of symptoms may occur, such as severe behavioral issues, anxiety, depression, poor digestion, sleep disorders, excessive energy, mood swings, confusion and trouble concentrating.

The LENYO Harmony is designed to address these issues with a comprehensive suite of customized programs that address and support a variety of emotional and physical areas including the digestive, circulatory and lymphatic systems; anxiety, emotional fluctuations and sleep quality; mental clarity and concentration; detoxification, energy balancing and rejuvenation.

With 12 automated BRT programs – and four channels simultaneously running synergistic programs and subprograms – the LENYO Harmony is designed to relax the body, calm the mind and restore inner balance.
